Project Showcase: Financing Rental Housing

DSHA's financing tools help developers and nonprofit partners create more affordable rental housing units for low- and moderate-income Delaware families. Over the last four years, DSHA financing has helped create or redevelop 1,925 units across our state.

One of those projects is Jefferson Apartments near

Lewes, which recently began a comprehensive renovation of phase II – 32 units in total, both one- and two-bedroom units. DSHA contributed Low-Income Housing Tax Credits to help finance the renovation work, which results in lower rents for tenants. When it's completed in summer 2018, all building systems will be replaced, apartments will have new windows, doors, kitchens, baths and surfaces, and there will be energy efficient upgrades.

DSHA has invested $84 million in affordable rental housing since 2009 – work that's making a real difference for Delaware.
